When you are preparing to take the test, here are a few things that you must be keen on. 1. If you cannot hear the words being said, mark that as inaudible or unintelligible. At times, the recordings are of poor quality in a way that you cannot make out what is being said. In such a case, you have to mark that section of the audio unintelligible as compared to forging something out of your own imagination. This applies to a situation where the speaker can be heard but you cannot make out what is being said. 2. When you are editing the document at the end, you have to monitor the length of the sentences that you are writing. If the speaker has said a very long sentence with no breaks in between, you are allowed to divide them up in a way that will make the sentence meaningful to the listener. This also applies when the speaker is using conjunctions like "but", "and" or "so" to join together sentences. 3. While transcribing a long speech or audio, you should try as much as you can to create shorter paragraphs for the text. In the transcription tool available on the website, you can write out paragraphs that should not be more than 500 symbols or 100 words. This can translate into 3-4 standard transcription text lines. (Roughly 25 words per line) 4. Never paraphrase or reconstruct the speech in the audio you are transcribing. This ensures that the original meaning of the statement is kept. You must ensure that you do not type what you think but what you have heard. 5. Do not correct grammatical errors made by the speakers. According to the platform, you are not allowed to correct anything found wrong with the way grammar was being used in the audio. It makes the platform maintain the message in the audio file and to ensure accuracy in the transcribed file. 6. Always use the correct spelling for misspoken words. When a word is pronounced wrongly in the audio file, you are at liberty to correct it as you type it out. This makes it easy for a reader to understand the message as they do not have to gamble with looking for meanings of wrong words. 7. Everything with a time stamp should be bolded. As mentioned earlier, you need to make the time stamps, speaker labels and marks bolder. You should also enclose the time stamps in square brackets as stated in the guidelines. 8. Always use square brackets in the final text transcribed. As a general rule for all transcribers on all platforms across the world, you have to use square brackets as opposed to the commonly used round brackets. 9. You should ensure that all punctuation marks are added to the document. If you have read any written work before, you know the importance of punctuations. They give you a stop and start flow to enjoy the text or document as you read through it. Therefore, you are asked to add question marks, full stops, commas and other punctuation marks as you see fit while editing the final transcribed text. 10. The beginning of every sentence is capitalized. On GoTranscript, you are tasked with ensuring the proper flow of the sentence by capitalizing the letter of the first word in each sentence. 11. Never change spoken contractions. Contractions like it's, y'all, don't and others must be kept that way if said by the speaker. The rule is that the verbatim does not matter if the speaker says it himself. 12. Never use exclamation marks. This rule is easy to understand. Exclamation marks are shown to indicate a significant emotion. This means that you have abandoned the rationality and objectivity required to perform transcription work better. 13. Speaker labels. When given the audio, you have to create or find the speaker labels. They help a reader to keep up with the conversation. In case the name of the speaker is mentioned, you should indicate the speaker label. This remains intact even when there is only one speaker. In case no name has been mentioned, there is need for you to make each speaker's role as descriptive as possible. That way, the document's text can flow better to a reader. If you do not understand who is speaking, you are required to add a question mark before the speaker label. These labels must be written in bold, followed by a colon and space. 14. Abbreviations and acronyms should not contain dashes or periods. When you hear the word USA, you should write it as USA not U.S.A. This goes against company policy and might cause you to fail the test. 15. Follow the customer's instructions. At times, the customer stipulates the way in which the document should look. Normally, they engage with the transcriptionist to communicate their needs with regards to a certain benchmark. 16. Italicize film, books, magazines, song titles, artworks, plays, radio programs etc. This also includes names and descriptions of famous people and their quotes. 17. Always research the proper capitalization. You have to make research about certain words if they are heard in the audio. For example, if the speaker mentions the word iPhone, it does not matter whether it is in the middle of the sentence or at the beginning. You have to use the commonly known spelling to make the word understandable. 18. Write links the way they should be written. Links should be written out as www.facebook.com. This is better than " w w w f a c e b o o k c o m." You have to make sure it retains its meaning. No spaces should be used when writing out links. 19. Sound events considerations. Certain sounds that are significant to the audio must be noted. Other sounds made by the speaker must be on the same line and always in the present tense. Sounds that are not attributed to the speaker are always on another line. Just like ambiance or background sound. 20. Numbers. The guidelines stipulate that you are supposed to spell out single digit numbers or use numerals. However, exceptions can be made when you come across money, years, ages, eras, percentages, measurements, mathematical equations and formulas, bible citations, fractions, postal codes, phone numbers and others. 21. How to deal with time of the day and dates. You should capitalize the words AM and PM when transcribing text. In case you are to use o'clock, you should type out the entire word. For example, seven o'clock. 22. Double dashes or a single dash. The basic rule is that you should use a single dash when the speech is interrupted but the speaker continues in his thought. The guidelines differ when dealing with full verbatim and clean verbatim. 23. Quotation marks. You can use double quotation marks when there is a direct quotation for example internal dialogues. The first word in the quotations must be capitalized. All other punctuation marks go inside the quotation marks. Sign Up For GoTranscript Here Is it easy to pass the GoTranscript test? GET STARTED WITH GOTRANSCRIPT What do you do if audio has no sound in GoTranscript? When the audio in the transcription test has no sound, you have to inform the team at GoTranscript. Since this is something that they occasionally deal with, they inform the client and make a refund of the money that was paid by the client. In the case of a transcriber, you are given other pieces of work to transcribe. If this issue exists in a small portion of the audio test file, it might be part of the test so you have to follow the instructions to the dot. It is usually a test of whether you understood the instructions. What should you do with curse words on GoTranscript? When an audio has cursed words, you type them as they are. Cursed words are a challenge since they look really bad on paper. However, the platform allows you to add them to the final text as they are mentioned in the audio file. Pros of GoTranscript.
